

Other Sources of Funding

Classics for All

Classics for All supports state schools across the UK to introduce or develop the teaching of classical subjects. As well as initial advice, support may include initial training, Continuing Professional Development and a contribution to any cover costs incurred, ongoing support and mentoring, and a modest contribution to resources and books. Grant applications are accepted throughout the year.

The Roman Society

The Roman Society awards grants to schools to help promote the teaching of Latin and Roman studies. Grants are usually in the range of £50 to £500 and are mostly for books and other teaching resources, although the Committee also makes awards to schools and museums organising lectures or study days on Roman themes. Applications from schools planning to start courses in Latin are particularly welcome. There are three closing dates: 1 February, 1 June and 1 November.

The Hellenic Society

The Hellenic Society awards small grants to institutions and schools to assist projects and events in the field of Hellenic Studies, including productions of Greek drama, student bursary schemes for conferences and fieldwork, the development of new courses, provision of books and other teaching materials, and summer schools for pupils. The application deadlines are 1 May and 1 October.

The Dover Fund, established in honour of Sir Kenneth Dover and administered by the Hellenic Society, awards grants to postgraduates and young scholars for such purposes as visits to libraries, museums and sites. The Fund aims to further the study of the Greek language in any period from the Bronze Age to the 15th century AD, and to further the edition and exegesis of Greek texts, including papyri and inscriptions, from any period within those same limits. The deadline for applications is 1 May.

The Royal Historical Society

The Royal Historical Society awards grants for research expenses and conference travel grants for postgraduates registered for research degrees at UK institutions of higher education (full-time and part-time). In addition, the RHS also considers applications for research expenses grants from doctoral students registered for a research degree outside the UK, and for conference travel grants from early career researchers. The closing dates for applications and supporting references in 2021 are 25 January, 29 March, 7 June, and 18 October.

The Institute of Classical Studies

The Institute of Classical Studies offers small grants (usually £250-500) in support of conferences and workshops throughout the UK, with preference given to proposals for meetings on innovative and interdisciplinary themes, or on emerging or endangered subjects. Grants are exclusively for the support of academic aspects of the conference, e.g. allowing a distinguished international scholar to be invited to speak. The forthcoming deadlines for applications are 1 March and 1 June 2021.

In addition, the ICS offers small grants (up to a maximum of £500 per application) in support of Classics-themed public engagement activities in the current academic year. Applicants must be UK-based researchers and preference will be given to proposals for activities which involve collaboration with external partners. Activities must demonstrate aspects of Classics research in ways that are accessible, enjoyable and understandable for non-academic audiences. The next deadline for applications is 1 May 2021.

The Society of Dilettanti

The Society of Dilettanti offers annual awards for students of Classical Studies at a UK university for visiting classical sites and museums in Greece, Italy or the Eastern Mediterranean. The intention is that this should provide an opportunity for those who would not otherwise be able to travel to see and experience at first hand works of Classical art and architecture. Appropriate candidates would be undergraduates planning an independent visit to the Mediterranean in the summer vacation.

The Thomas Wiedemann Memorial Fund

The Thomas Wiedemann Memorial Fund provides small grants for Postgraduate students in Classical Studies at UK universities to assist with the costs of research visits to universities, libraries, or museums in the UK. Grants are mainly for travel costs, although assistance may also be given with accommodation, subsistence costs and conference fees. Any student currently enrolled for a taught or research postgraduate course related to the ancient Greek or Roman worlds (broadly defined) at any UK university is eligible to apply. Applications should usually be made at least one month before the intended date of travel.

The Association for the Study and Preservation of Roman Mosaics (ASPROM)

The Association for the Study and Preservation of Roman Mosaics (ASPROM) offers grants up to a maximum value of £500 to support projects relating to the study, conservation and display of ancient mosaics. The grants are open to individuals and to UK sites and museums. Applicants for individual grants should be ASPROM members and doing research for a degree and/or for the publication of a book or article on ancient mosaics, or participating in a project to conserve or preserve mosaics. Applicants for museum or site grants can be the owner or director of the museum or site, an organization that supports the work of the museum or site, or an individual acting on behalf of a museum or site. Awards are made twice a year. The application deadlines are 31 January and 31 August.
